Day traders don't care whether the index moves up or down. All the stocks in the S&P 500 move all day long, and so does SPY, tracking the worth of the holdings/underlying stocks. Combined with very large volume, those fluctuations allow day traders to actively trade throughout the day.

What Is the SPDR S&P 500 ETF (SPY)?

Day trading is the strategy of buying and selling a futures contract within the same day without holding open long or short positions overnight. Day trades vary in duration; they can last for a couple of minutes or at times, for most of a trading session. It takes lots of knowledge, experience, and discipline to day trade futures successfully.
